

Introduction to Biology Methods

1. Explain how an experiment is designed, including the independent and dependent variables, experimental and control groups.
2. Describe how data is collected, represented, and shared in science.
3. List and describe the major organizational levels of life.
4. Identify and describe the characteristics required for life.

